AITUTAKI

Located 140 nautical miles north of Rarotonga, Aitutaki is a paradise known for its stunning lagoon, which glistens in hues of milky green and soft blue, surrounded by silky white sandbars and pristine, uninhabited islets (motus) lined with palm-fringed beaches. The island consists of 15 small motus and a central volcanic island that rises 123 meters above sea level. With a population of around 1,700 residents, Aitutaki's main island stretches 9 kilometers in length and spans 2.5 kilometers at its widest point, situated in the northwestern part of the lagoon.
